After the race Mr. Healey and Mr. Wilson were the most surprised persons at the course. They sent for the jockey and when he confronted them both blurted out: "In the name of goodness, Buddy, how did you make that horse win?"

The jockey replied that she was the best horse in the race. He then explained how he did it:

"When I had gone three furlongs," he said, "I tried her out by giving her her head for a few_jumps. As I let out on the reins she surprised me by springing away. I then decided to reserve that speed until near home and I took a firm hold on her and allowed her to step along behind the pace. At the final furlong pole I gave her her head, used the whip on her and gave her half a dozen good kicks. Under the punishment she responded gamely and got up in time to win on the post by a fread."

There is no doubt that Ensor got more out of the filly than she ever showed before, but that she won was because Joe Mooney made the fatal mistake of "going to the whip" on Liola when he saw Ensor on Locust Leaves charging on him. Joe became a trific rattled and his crack with the whip made Liola awerve a bit and throw her head in the air. When he went back to a hand ride Liola went forward again and in another jump would have won the race. If Mooney had not made use of the whip Liola probably would have won with a trifle to spare.

Giants and Dodgers Open Big Series To-Day. The Giants have been counted out of the pennant race, but that fact apparently has not diminished, to any great extent, the interest in their the Dodgers, which is to open at Ebbets Field this afternoon. All five horses were starting. But Ensor lin B. Jeurdan of the Brooklyn Riding the reserved seats were taken up long ago, and it looks like a record crowd both to-day and to-morrow. Next Thursday the scene of Giant-Dodger warfare will shift to the Polo Grounds, where three more games will be played. The Dodgers need two more victories to assure themselves of the flag. If the Giants should win to-day, with Arthur Nehf pitching against Burleigh Grimes, and score again to-morrow, the Polo Grounds will be jammed on Thursday. That the fans of New York are with the Giants, in spite of their failure to win the pennant, was demonstrated last Sunday, when more than 36,000 fans paid thefr way in to see the New Yorks trounce the Reds. Thus far the Giants have won only five games out of seventeen against Brooklyn, so the odds are very much in favor of the Dodgers. But there is no telling how the dope will work at this stage of the campaign.

That Brooklyn fans are not making any great howl against paying $5.50 grand stand seats for the world's series is demonstrated by the fact that all reserved seats costing $6.60 and $5.50 already have been allotted. Only
